Thursday is World Book Day and to mark the occasion children can dress up as their favourite book character for the day. Costumes will be judged in assembly and prizes will be given out to the best dressed book character. We will be looking for creativity and uniqueness in costumes. There is no requirement to go and spend a lot of money on costumes.

In school, the children will be taking part in many reading activities throughout the day, including sharing a story with another teacher and the return of our Where's Wally hunt.

This is always a day we look forward to at Woodhouse as our children are always fantastic at dressing up and do love a good story.

See if you can guess who your teacher is dressed up as...
